Broward College Receives $1.68 Million Grant from U.S. Department of Labor for Micro-credentialing in Higher Education Project

The U.S. Department of Labor's Strengthening Community College Training Grants program has awarded Broward College a grant of $1.68 million. The Training Grants Program is focused on helping build community colleges' capacity to meet labor market demand for a skilled workforce. Broward College received one of 11 grants awarded to community colleges across the nation and the only grant awarded in Florida. Micro-credentials are short term courses of training in a particular field or area that allow students to gain qualifications or expertise.

The funding will support the Broward College Micro-credentialing in Higher Education (MicroHE) Project over four years through support for employees, including faculty, equipment, tuition, and fees. The MicroHE Project also aims to engage nine new employer partners, 1,240 students, enhance program maps, technological infrastructure, and articulation agreements for credits. The grant allows the College to expand Rapid Credentials, which has already received funding from the Florida Department of Education's Governor's Emergency Education Relief (GEER) through the CARES Act funding for short-term workforce training to accelerate economic recovery.

Broward UP™ Mural Unveiled at HANDY Headquarters

On Saturday, January 23, Broward College, in partnership with Twenty6North Productions, unveiled the first of six murals it has commissioned in Broward County. The mural was designed by artist Nate Dee and includes Sammy the Seahawk's image. The pilot mural is located at the main headquarters of HANDY (Helping Abused Neglected Disadvantaged Youth) in Fort Lauderdale. The goal is to have at least one mural in each of the six Broward UP zip codes. The murals reflect the College's plan to be permanently present and accessible to residents and designed with residents' input. They are intended to engage, excite, and inspire the residents of Broward UP communities.

Florida Blue Awards More Than $370,000 to Broward College to Help Address Food Insecurity Among Students

The Florida Blue Foundation has awarded a four-year grant of $377,000 to build three food pantries, called Seahawk Marketplace, on each Broward College main campus. The Seahawk Marketplace will offer food and hygiene products to students at no cost. The first Seahawk Marketplace will open on the A. Hugh Adams Central Campus in the fall of 2021, followed by North Campus, then the Judson A. Samuels South Campus in the following years. The grant builds on the College's efforts to address food insecurity among its students. In a spring 2020 climate survey at the institution, 28 percent of students indicated hunger or not having enough food impacted their academic performance. The College has responded with a comprehensive effort that supports students beyond the classroom, including assistance with food and personal items through a weekly food distribution drive-through, which began in September 2020.

Safety and Security Gets a Boost with New App

The College's effort to guarantee the safety of its students and employees continues with the upgrade of its safety app to the Everbridge Safety App. The Everbridge platform is used by most major cities and other higher education institutions to support emergency alerts. The app turns smartphones into a personal bodyguard that provides 24-hour protection while on campus. The College has discontinued the use of the Rave Guardian App. Everbridge delivers the same four main functions: an SOS panic button, the ability to place emergency calls to the Security Operations Center (SOC), a location check-in function, and Safe Corridor interval-based check-in. The app is available to all students, faculty, and staff and can be downloaded via Google Play or the App Store using their Broward College email. Everbridge is also now supporting the College's emergency alert notification, known as BC ALERT.

Board Receives Another Update on Enrollment Trends

In the latest update, Janice Stubbs, vice provost, Student Services, told the Board that there continues to be a national decline in college enrollment. Data from the National Student Clearing House indicates that enrollment is down across U.S. colleges by ten percent. She explained to the Board that compared to the same period in spring last year, the paid and unpaid headcount were down by 14 percent. She shared several factors that affect enrollment, including job loss, fear of infection of COVID-19, and remote learning challenges. VP Stubbs noted that for sessions three and four combined, the College saw an eight percent increase in enrollment, indicating that most students were waiting until later sessions to register for classes. She said the most significant increase in enrollment was in the shortest session, which offers courses over eight weeks. She added her team would be doing a further assessment to see what makes this session attractive and determine how best to adjust to students' needs.

Board Approves Memorandum of Understanding Between the Federal Reserve Bank of Atlanta and the College for Fiscal Benefits Cliff

This partnership includes an emphasis on building strong support tools for employers and educational institutions as well as policymakers. Through the MOU, both parties will collaborate on:

- The Career Ladder Identifier and Financial Forecaster Dashboard will allow the College to identify benefits cliffs by analyzing how public benefits interact with in-demand pathways and specific Broward College career ladders.
- Partnership on advising and career coaching resources guides for staff to confidently and competently use the personal planner with students in the career decision making process.

General Counsel Provides Update on Legislative Items

VP Hofmeyer also focused on the bills that affect higher education, the six percent holdback from the Governor, and the three percent cut to FCS and the State University System (SUS). She also explained that the Governor did not allocate any funds towards maintenance and repair to the FCS. She will provide another update to the Board at the end of the legislative session.

The College Continues to Identify Ways to Close Budget Gaps

Caleb Cornelius, vice president, Finance, in his presentation explained some of the factors that have contributed to the current gaps in the College's budget for the fiscal year. He said that while there was a projection for a four percent decline, there is currently a gap of 11 percent. Part of this is attributed to a decline in enrollment and the state's final budget decision to withhold six percent of its approved funding for colleges due to the impact of COVID-19. This decision was also made after the College had approved its budget. VP Cornelius said the College is actively finding ways to address the shortfall and was optimistic this could be done. He said the College has saved about half a million dollars per month through the fall term through reduced costs such as electricity, water usage, and office supplies. He said through the mid-year budget review, the College continues to look for opportunities to reprioritize funding and redirect funds to other initiatives or other programs that may generate more income. He is optimistic the College will identify ways to close the gap.

Policy Revisions

During the February Board meeting, the following policy revisions were approved:

Policy 6Hx2-4.22, Awards and Graduation
